

THE INTERNATIONAL BACCALAUREATE

TRINITY GRAMMAR SCHOOL INTERNATIONAL BACCALAUREATE RESULTS 2013

Peter Goetze | Director of the International Baccalaureate.

OVERVIEW

As the IB grows in numbers (60 candidates in 2013 up from 43 in 2012) the standard of our results has risen along with it, as the number of students earning 40+ IB points has risen from 7 in 2012 to 21 in 2013. The stand out performance from Liam Obeid and Mark Gabriel are testament to their all-round ability and determination to succeed. A perfect score of 45 is an achievement worthy of acclaim at the highest level. Thomas Hart, Johnny Farhart and Arun Lertsumitkul were agonisingly close to a 45, earning 44 points with a superb demonstration of organisation and application.

One very pleasing statistic reveals that 43 out of our 60 candidates (72%) achieved an IB score of 33+ and, therefore, an ATAR equivalent of 90+. It is well worth noting too that over 85% of our candidates obtained IB scores in excess of 29.9+ IB points, which is the IB world average score. This statistic further emphasises Trinity's exceptional performances, year in and year out, which are always far in excess of the IB world standard.

One area that Trinity makes the most of its opportunities is the Core of the IB. We should be very proud of the fact that, 24 students (40% of our candidature) achieved the full 3 extra points awarded for Theory of Knowledge and the Extended Essay. 70% of our candidates achieved an A or a B in Theory of Knowledge while a significant proportion of our students (73%) achieved either an A or a B in their Extended Essays. A pleasing development in Extended Essays has been the sheer variety of subjects from which our students are drawing inspiration. Our Extended essays were spread over 13 different subjects this year.

Even with the further revision of the ATAR conversion table, an average IB score of 36, equates to an ATAR of 94.30, a pleasing return for two years of demanding academic rigour.
